First Arnold Family Lecture
Chaotic elections: why don't we elect whom voters really want?
Tuesday, September 22, 2009
Donald G. Saari, distinguished professor, mathematics and economics, University of California-Irvine

Teaching about the universe through games and 3-D graphics
Thursday, November 12, 2009
Jeffrey Weeks, freelance mathematician

From flapping birds to space telescopes: the math of origami
Tuesday, February 9, 2010
Robert J. Lang, artist and consultant

Can chocolate save your life?
Thursday, April 22, 2010
Nancy Reid, professor of statistics, University of Toronto